The Fourth Annual Mormon Festival of Arts opens today when Dr. Truman G. Madson, professor of philosophy addresses a keynote dinner at 6:45 p.m. in the Skyroom, ELWC. Dr. Madson will launch the festival with an address on the topic "A Unique Mormon Aesthetics."

See page eight of this edition for a schedule of events for this week.

The 24-day festival "is developing into a very valuable outlet for creative Latter-day Saint people to express their convictions about Mormon values and principles," according to Allen Cornwall, an assistant to Dean Lorin F. Wheelwright who directs the yearly events.

"THIS IS an opportunity for a real expression of beliefs, and not just a chance to manufacture illustrations of obvious Church subjects," said Cornwall. Themed "Strengthening the Family Through Arts," the festival attempts to let "the world acknowledge our artistic endeavors," he added.

Each department within the College of Fine Arts and Communications will present its own series of events, with the climax of the Festival, a Family Fireside of Easter Music, being held in the Marriott Activity Center. It will feature the Combined BYU musical Organizations joining with massed choirs and families of Utah valley, some 22,000 people singing together.

ANOTHER feature of the Festival this year will be a "one-time-only" venture of recording on film the various events presented.

The production class of Wally Barrus of the Communications Department under the direction of the College of Fine Arts and Communications has written a script entitled, "Shade of Difference." It is a dialog-dramatic type film of the Mormon Festival, explained Cornwall.

The Mormon Festival of Arts was inaugurated at BYU in 1968 and the first year it consisted of an art exhibit and the premier performance in America of Ralph Vaughn Williams' Religious opera, "Pilgrim's Progress."

THE SECOND year the Festival was expanded to include music, drama, dance and literature.

The third annual Festival saw further expansion. Creative Latter-day Saints from all over the world joined together in concerts, plays, musicals, readings, symposia, recitals, art and photography exhibits to express Mormon values artistically.

"This year with the Fourth effort in presenting this Festival, we have especially been gratified at the interest and support received from both students and faculty members for this year's presentation," Cornwall concluded.

Student effort

Park proposal disclosed

A tentative plan for a "natural" park to be designed, and landscaped by BYU students was announced yesterday by Vice-President of Student Community Services Rob Jones.

The park, which would be located on a vacant lot northeast of the Temple block would represent a cooperative effort of the university, Provo City, and the Utah National Forest Service which owns parts of the property, according to Jones. Forest officials authored the proposal after Jones approached them for project suggestions in conjunction with his office.

"No one is committed to doing it yet," said President Reed Wilcox. "We're just considering it."

The University, according to Jones, would not formally own the park because of prohibitive costs. "We would take this on as a school project in volunteering manpower and doing the manual labor," said Jones. "We might call upon the different departments, like Environmental Design, to draw up plans and at the same time have a practical experience."

Jones and Wilcox emphasized that the University would continue to play a role in the maintenance of the park after it was constructed.

Jones envisions "a natural park that fits with the surrounding environment using the trees and shrubs already there and planting grass." "Later, if finances could be raised we could add more varied vegetation," he said.

Wilcox speculated that, if approved, work on the park would begin within the next month, "as soon as all arrangements can be made and we can be well organized."

"The Forest Service was concerned about erosion on the hill since the construction of the Temple," said Jones who explained that such a park would "enhance the natural environment and stop erosion with vegetation."

Wilcox estimates that the complete project would take about one year. "Students could then say they helped to build the environment and see the fruits of it too," he said.

objections

Allegations of "unfair" were made yesterday over the appearance of an Athletics Office candidate on KSL radio Friday night.

Randy Smith, candidate for vice president of athletics, was interviewed by sportscaster Paul James for several minutes during the half-time of the BYU-UTEP game. The interview concerned problems the Athletics Office has had this year over the distribution of basketball tickets. Smith has been assistant ticket director this year.

Greg Jewel, another athletics vice presidential candidate, called it "unfair" and said he has considered bringing it to the elections committee for a possible violation of campaign rules.

Bob Bush, also a candidate, said it appeared as though the radio had donated the time to Smith and he felt that Smith should have to pay for it. Both considered the interview to have had campaign overtones.

Paul James said that he did not know that Smith was a candidate. "He should have let me know," said James. "If I had known, I wouldn't have had him on."

JAMES SAID that he had been contacted by the Athletics Office a few days before the game and had been asked if they could have some time to explain the ticket policy. No definite answer had been given at the time.

"The next time I was approached was at the game," said James. "I did not want to do it at first, but Smith convinced me it would be a good public service," he continued. "I asked him if there would be any ramifications and he said no," James added.

SMITH SAID that he did not campaign at all while he was on the radio. "No way did I say vote for me," he remarked.

"I feel the complaints are ill-founded. I had no intention to campaign," he added.

ASBYU president Reed Wilcox commented that he did not feel Smith was in a violation of campaign rules. "He did not try to persuade," he said. "He was just doing his job. If he would have been running or not, we would have been on the radio," Wilcox said.

Platforms given

Candidates for the ASBYU offices of Women's Activities and Student Community Service informed an estimated 25 students of the platforms they would initiate next year in the first open forum for ASBYU elections.

Kathy Christensen, co-chairman of Homecoming '71, said she would like to continue the established correlation program by correlating women's activities with the Relief Societies in campus wards.

She also stressed the totally educated woman by proposing a speaker's referral bureau, a girl's night out, and more women speakers on contemporary issues such as women's lib.

Irene Purselley, a two-year member of the Women's Activities Office, based her platform on a women's activity every week in social, spiritual, and academic activities.

Cyndi Terri, a two-year member of the Women's Activities Office, said she wanted to provide and continue individual growth.

Miss Terri proposed a program to coordinate service with the Student Community Service Office so "we will get more girls involved in giving and sharing."

She also wanted to organize a representative's council for housing units, which would serve to inform BYU women of activities.

Candidates for the Office of Student Community Service, Robert Arbuckle, John Falk, Craig Griffith, and Mitchell Hunt, all based their platforms on the same ideas and principles, established in the new Office of Student Community Service, with a few small changes added.

Arbuckle felt Y day should again be made a day of service which would unite the campus and community. He also prescribed periodic visits by city councilmen in discussing service projects.

Falk posed a more student involvement platform with student polling through the Daily Universe.

Griffith had new ideas for the Office in the areas of a new park north of the Temple, work in forests, and better communication with the Provo Beautification and Provo River Association Boards.

Hunt initiated a motivation program. His main platform is based on a booklet he researched along with Dr. Doyle Buckwalter of the Political Science Dept.

American II returns from Denver trip

The cast of American II recently returned from representing BYU in the American College Theater Festival competition held in Denver, Colo.

Three universities performed in the region four competition there: Montana State University, Gunnison College in Colorado and BYU.

Montana State University was chosen to perform at the national college theater festival to be held in Washington, D.C., with their entry of "The Price," by Arthur Miller.

While attending the competition in Denver, each school gave only one performance and were judged by anonymous judges. No reactions were given on different areas of each production, according to Dr. Charles Metten, director of the BYU entry, "American II: The Devil and Daniel Webster and Pullman Car-Hawatha".

Ten plays from 13 different regions will be chosen to perform in the competition in Washington, D.C., to be held sometime in late April or early May.

A NEW SOCIAL PERSPECTIVE

For most of us it's difficult meeting new people alone. The majority of our present activities give little confidence to those who need it when meeting the opposite sex. I feel the Social Office in correlation with the wards could initiate a program wherein each family would be put in touch with a similar family from another ward for informal mingling and activities. In the casual family atmosphere, confidence increases and new friendships come easy.

Wake up Canadians

Editor:

Yesterday's statement is enough I'm referring to the rather juvenile and ignorant remark by a Canadian girl concerning her feelings on having to stand for the American National Anthem. It's sad that the D.U. in printing two quotes from two Canadians this year have had to pick two who with their infinite wisdom have spattered forth words of absolute nonsense.

The first was by a Canadian, who when asked his opinion of the American draft smugly said:

Daily Universe

crimson lewis/editor
 ben connor/business manager daryl gibson/managing editor
 mark skoulen/editorial page editor

"Canada has no draft. We live in a free country." He's quite correct. Canada is free, but the U.S. isn't. Am I to believe that any country with a draft isn't free. Or better still was Canada free during W.W.2 when she had a draft? If the U.S. isn't free then why is he living here?

Second we have the card reply to another D.U. interview. This Canadian girl said it makes her mad to stand there for two minutes. She says the Canadian National Anthem is faster, and she's right too. But so what? If she was in Germany and had to stand for their anthem would she be mad? Is their anthem quicker? If she married a German would she learn the words just because he's from Germany?

It appears that too many Canadians have reached the point where they think they can calmly, effectively, and forcefully denounce and slander their neighbour to the south with reckless abandon. Like the article said: "the proper respect" seems to be some Canadians any harm to take note of. It seems to be the sad reality for Canadians everywhere to make fun of the very country that's keeping them alive. I know it's hard for them to admit this fact, but it's undeniably true. As Canadians who are members of the Church I should think they would be doubly aware of this. Now I ask any Canadian this question: "If you saw an American be disrespectful to the Canadian flag what would your feelings be?" Now you know how Americans must feel. Hurts, doesn't it?

Fun and games?

Editor:

Only recently have I come to realize that the Gospel and many of its sacred principles, such as the Priesthood, love, and even eternal life, are directly correlated with and expressed through the service we render to others. I am deeply disturbed and frightened by young men who would replace "one day of service" with one day of "fun and games." I truly believe that there "shall be many who will say eat drink and be merry for tomorrow we die."

Quote for the day
"A good word is an easy obligation, but not to speak ill, requires only our silence, which costs us nothing."

—Tillotson

whose doctrines are false and would lead us into darkness.

It is undoubtedly true that service cannot be confined to merely one day each year, with this understanding in mind was the "Student Community Service Committee" established. This fine organization will do much to foster widespread participation in service projects throughout the year.

The fact remains that we are afforded enough "fun and games" at BYU that a meaningful "Y day" of service would, in reality, be a break in the monotony. I feel that "Y day" represents something more than mere tradition. It represents a people whose beliefs hinge upon their desire to serve others. I would not allow it to buckle under the dunder of the weak and lazy, but maintain it for the willing and the able. Let us remember that if we have not charity we are nothing.

Actions speak louder . .

By J. KEITH MORGAN
 Universe Editorial Writer

In the past years, the propensity of the disgruntled to express their displeasure over poverty, pollution and more multifarious maladies of the society has taken a more activist and less active form. Integration, poverty, pollution and war have all received their share of angry pickets, resolute in their desire to end all may. Many have questioned the efficacy of this approach in solving these problems.

Relative to this question, we recently received a circular from Campus Studies Institute, which appears along side this column. The crux of the Institute's argument is summed up by Professor Paul Saltman of the University of California, San Diego:

"Famine will not be stopped by people carrying placards in parades. Famine will be stopped by those men who can fix nitrogen cheaply at low temperatures and low pressures and bring nitrogen fertilizers to the world, by the geneticists who will be able to breed plants with high lysine, tryptophane and methionine content in their protein. It will not be effected by slogans and bumper stickers."

TWO MEN wiser than this writer had interesting statements on the matter. Paraphrased, one said that for every thousand people who are hacking away at the leaves, only one is cutting at the roots. The other is perhaps more profound: It is far better to light one candle than to curse the darkness.

The nation would profit greatly if students protested less and studied more so that they might be able to use their knowledge to produce constructive solutions instead of cacophonous criticism. As the flyer points out, if our early inventors and innovators had worked with their voices instead of their heads and hands, the state of our progress and technology could not possibly be what it is.

Ford didn't demand laws to hassle horses.

Bell didn't lobby against late letters.

Carver didn't demonstrate against spoiled soil.

And the Wright brothers didn't file a class action suit against gravity.

Instead of using their INDIVIDUAL initiative to solve problems, these men could have

Lobbied, Policed, Pressured, Organized, Demonstrated, Demanded, Threatened, Coerced or otherwise applied Political Power to win GOVERNMENT intervention

Y-Line

By BRIAN ANDERSON

How much are elected ASBYU officers paid?

Junior, San Francisco, California

Each of the elected officers has his or her tuition paid for the year. In addition, each of the Vice Presidents receives $100 per semester; the President receives $260 per semester.

Has the Drama Department ever considered the lottery ticket distribution system for its productions? If not, why not?

Senior, Sumter, South Carolina

Apparently the need has not been present. The Y Line spoke to David Irwin in the ticket office. According to Irwin, tickets are usually available at least until the performance opens. Irwin has worked in ticket distribution for three years and reports that "Fiddler on the Roof" was the first production sold out on the first day of distribution in that three year period. Even "Dance on a Country Grave" did not sell out until just before opening night. For most productions tickets are available over a period of weeks.

Why do the Honors Students have a special reading room in the Library?

Senior, Minneapolis, Minnesota

Basically there are two reasons, according to Donald K. Nelson, Library Director. First, Honors Students are highly sought after by colleges and universities. The reading room is one of the advantages offered by the university. Some schools offer private, enclosed study carrels. Second, the nature of the Honors program is such that it is more effective if the faculty and advisors involved can be located where the students will be spending a great deal of their time. If the faculty offices were located elsewhere, a reading room would be provided at that location.

Why don't they have visual coverage of Forum and Debates in the Varsity Theater anymore?

Junior, Alberta, Canada

This question was asked a number of weeks ago and has since been asked by others. The question of video coverage in the de Jong Concert Hall was also raised. Video projection was removed from the Varsity Theater largely as a matter of time commitment by the staff at the Wilkinson Center. The sound system at the Wilkinson Center is undergoing major location changes. In order to complete that change as quickly as possible, it was decided that video broadcasts could be eliminated, thereby saving approximately eight man-hours per week. The matter has been reconsidered, according to Lyle Curtis, Building Director, and video broadcast will be reinstated March 7.

Draft dodgers

Editor

I am writing concerning the article in Wednesday's Universe "Get to Know Canada" by Jim S. Nutt, Canadian Consul General. Mr. Nutt refuted the claim that 70,000 men had entered Canada to avoid the draft. His claims were 15,600 Americans had officially emigrated to Canada, in the past 10 years. Mr. Nutt failed to mention, however, the thousands who unofficially entered Canada. Nor did he care to mention the "Toronto Anti Draft Program", formerly a federally financed Student Union for Peace Action, The Toronto Anti Draft Program consists of several rooms and offices, the walls of which are covered with Communist Propaganda. He failed to mention members of this organization who enter the U.S. to hand out pamphlets, encouraging protest and evaders to Canada. Prime Minister Trudeau told a Menominee delegation in Winnipeg that he welcomed draft resisters. Mr. Nutt doesn't feel he should do the U.S.'s job of sending the draft dodgers back. Perhaps, Mr. Nutt, if the Canadian Government wouldn't encourage draft dodgers then the U.S. wouldn't have as large a problem.

Temple lauded as 'place of revelation'

"This valley will never be the same now that that building stands on that hill," said Dr. Truman G. Madsen, BYU philosophy professor, referring to the new Provo Temple at the 10-Slack Freeway Sunday.

He used Doctrine and Covenants 88:119 as the text of his speech: "Establish a house, even a house of prayer, a house of fasting, a house of faith, a house of learning, a house of glory, a house of order, a house of God."

Testifying that the dedicatory prayer of the temple was written by revelation, Madsen answered those who question "How can the Lord reveal a prayer to offer to Him who revealed it?" He explained that we must listen to the Lord to "know what to say. The temple is the place where you can listen for what the Lord wants you to ask."

According to Madsen, Elder Melvin J. Ballard taught that individuals should look at their problems, deliberate on them and pray. Then, if no answer is given, go to the temple. "There an answer will come," he promised.

Dr. Craig, new BYU English Dept. chairman

Dr. Marshall R. Craig, professor of English and a faculty member for 19 years, has been appointed chairman of the BYU English Department, effective June 1; it was announced today by President Dallin H. Oaks.

He succeeds Dr. Dale H. West, who has served as chairman for seven years. He will resume teaching and supervising students training to become English teachers in the department.

The English Department, part of the College of Humanities, is the largest of all BYU departments, with a faculty of almost 70 full-time teachers, plus many part-time teachers. Approximately 7,000 students enroll in English classes at BYU each semester.

Prior to coming to BYU in 1953, Craig taught at the New York Institute for Education of the Blind, Pace College in New York City, and New York University. He received the B.S. degree at BYU and the M.S. and Ph.D. degrees at Columbia University.

Recognized as one of the foremost scholar-teachers at BYU, he was chosen BYU Honors Professor of the year in 1968, and received the Karl G. Maeser Award for Excellence in Teaching in 1970. From 1955 to 1963 he was coordinator of freshman English and later was advanced placement officer.

Closing his discourse, he testified that "the Lord's spirit has prompted you individually that the temple is yours" and "you need to sacrifice for it some of your sin. The power of Christ is in His sanctuary."

Richards shines on offense, defense

By LEE BENSON
Assistant Sports Editor

Every now and then BYU comes up with what Coach Stan Watts calls a real "blue-chipper."

A blue-chipper, according to the Cougar basketball coach, is the sort whose average performance is far above average. His shooting is accurate, his defense is dominating, and his attitude and desire are positive.

Watts figures sophomore standout Doug Richards, starting guard on this year's Cougar team, fits into the blue-chip category. As a mere first-year performer, Richards has established himself as both an offensive and defensive threat.

HAILING from Salt Lake City, where he attended Granite High School, Richards ventured to the "Y" because of "an outstanding basketball program. I like the fast break style, besides," Richards continued, "I wanted to get away from home."

An exceptional athlete, Richards was a star in both football and basketball in high school, making Utah's all-state teams in both sports.

Following the fine prep performances, requests came pouring in for Doug's talents. More than 50 schools offered basketball scholarships, Richards chose the hoop sport over football because "I picked the sport I felt I was best in. I guess basketball has always been my first love. I started playing it when I was six or seven."

THE BASKETBALL choice naturally brought smiles to Watts, his staff, and blue basketball fans. But the football staff felt left out of things. Doug aims to assist the Cougar gridiron cause too, however. "After my four years of basketball I'd like to play football the fifth year," Doug said.

No sense in overcrowding one sport at one time with "Richards" talent. Doug's brother, Golden, is presently a big cog in the Cougar football wheel. Golden will be a senior this fall, a prime candidate for all-America honors.

Both Doug and Golden starred together on Granite High's football and basketball teams.

Doug's introduction to varsity collegiate basketball this year hasn't been any gradual thing. He won the up-for-grabs starting guard spot the first game of the season and has held it ever since. But the inter-squad competition has been heavy. "The competition among the players has helped make me a better ball player," according to Doug.

ALONG WITH his starting slot, Richards has been given the call in most games to defend the opposing team's sharp-shooter. Doug attributes a great share of his defensive prowess to assistant coach Glenn Potter, whom he states, "knows a fantastic lot about defense." Time and again, Richards has stopped an opposing spirit cold with his tenacious defense, highlighted by a unique ability to recover rapidly.

Now that the year has matured, and the play-offs are at hand Doug feels he's improved a great deal over the year. "My experience and confidence have improved considerably. Bernie Fryer has helped me an awful lot. He inspires me to try harder," commented Richards. Offensively Richards is averaging over ten points per game.

With all his other interests, Doug hasn't settled himself down to a major yet. "Maybe sociology, but I'm not sure," said Doug. A capable golfer, handicapped eight, Richards enjoys hitting the links and also loves the out-of-doors and "loafing around."

Doug's basketball oriented apartment, which includes Belmont Anderson, Cig Clawson, and Greg Snow, all BYU players, currently has a contest going to "see who can take out the best looking girl on campus." Doug declined to say who is in the lead, DESPITE all his interests, Richards will likely have one thing in mind this week—Saturday's nationally televised encounter with Long Beach State in Provo. Tenacious defense and a good shooting eye are major qualifications necessary for the Cats to upend the 49ers.

Student drama begins today

An entirely new production in staging will be experimented when
"A Sceptre, A Sword, and A Scented Rose" is presented as part of the fourth annual Mormon Festival of Arts at BYU.

The original production, written by C. Thom Dugan, a senior at BYU will be presented today at
Mar. 7 through Mar. 18 at 8 p.m.
The production, which deals with the story of the conversion of King Lamoni taken from the Book of Mormon, will play simultaneously to two separate audiences viewing from opposite sides. This effect will be achieved by removing the backstage wall
from between the Nelke Experimental Theater and the Margaret's Arena Theater.

It is not theatrical sound, as no one will view the production from the sides; instead the two audiences will perceive the production from opposite points of view.

Randy Parker as Ammon, Mike Flynn as Lamoni, and Barry Carrell as Antiamon in Book of Mormon drama, "A Sceptre, A Sword and A Scented Rose" scheduled as part of the Mormon Festival of Arts.

Dr. Max Golithy, who is directing the drama, characterized this approach to staging as a
"reach out," and said "we may not know for certain until after the last performance what the total effect has been upon our learning."
